Hunters' Paradise.

Editor The Herald and News:

I arrived at Estherville plantation, the beautiful home of Mr. F. E. Johnstone, on the water front of Winnyah bay, ten miles below Georgetown, S. C. I was charmed at the delightful scenery, an avenue of hundreds of yards of huge live oaks, with moss draping from their lofty bowers. Surrounded by a hunter's home, a palatial bungalow with spacious, well holstered apartments, a huge fire place, to accommodate a six-foot stick of wood.

Mr. J. W. Epting was my companion for a deer hunt. To my astonishment, Mr. F. E. Johnstone had a hunting preserve of 15,000 acres filled with game, as deer, ducks, wild turkeys, doves, partridges, pheasants and squirrels. Also a beautiful lake teeming with choice fish, trout, etc. Here we feasted for days, by our large-hearted hostess, Mrs. F. E. Johnstone, nee Miss Eleanor Nicholson, formerly from Edgefield, aided by that noble, interesting aid, Miss Isabel Johnstone. Take a Georgetown and Edgefield lady combined, if these do not surpass the meals served to the best in Paris, then I am no judge of what pleases the inner man.

At Little Mountain an iron hoop was placed around me to prevent an explosion, but here no doubt Mr. J. C. Duncan had apprised these that the champion eater of Newberry had arrived, so a block and tackle was on hand for emergencies.

At early dawn we bagged 12 squirrels before breakfast, was told as many as 300 of these killed in a month, hunting only an hour or two a day.

On for the deer drive with 14 hounds. Mr. F. E. Johnstone and his guide, Mr. Williams, placed Mr. J. W. Epting and your scribe on deer stands. As many as 17 deer passed to and near us. Mr. Mr. J. W. Epting, also Col. A. R. Nicholson of Edgefield, both became sea sick and such cavorting and snorting was never equalled by all the monsters in the briny deep. A boat along side of us caught 16 sea bass. These fish weighed 40 pounds each. When we hooked and landed a 100-pound devil fish our pilot ordered weigh anchor, put up the jibs and Doctor Folk at the wheel, so our craft rode safely the huge billows and landed at the beautiful bungalow with our two sick sailors, not quite dead, but still breathing, but unable to partake of the sumptuous meal presided by that most interesting and charming lady, Miss Isabel Johnstone.

The next day these two had recovered, when Col. A. R. Nicholson just showed we Newberry hunters how to kill a fine deer, that fell to his deadly aim. I must state here we sure painted with the blood of a deer the face of Mr. J. W. Epting. He yielded like a man the penalty we inflicted upon him.

Mr. F. E. Johnstone, the owner of these magnificent hunting preserves, gives all the game bagged by sportsmen. He is filled by sportsmen from Pennsylvania, Iowa, Illinois, New York and many states, making necessary the appointment of dates to secure hunting privileges. We are again at home, and shall for life look upon this hunt as one long to be remembered. "No more till death, Joseph Jones."

The Lanier Literary society has announced the first of a series of programs set apart to the study of French literature.

The leading Halloween festivity took the form of a ghost party which was given on Saturday evening by the Lanier society. The guests of the evening were the faculty and the members of the Esthervian Literary society.

On Friday evening, November 19, Hon. William Jennings Bryan will deliver an address in the auditorium of the college upon the subject "The European War and Its Lessons For Us."

President James P. Kinard has returned after a brief visit to Columbia. Miss Vivian Cox of Belton was called home this week by the death of her sister, Mrs. Ernest Cox.

Miss Martha Paget of Anderson visited in the college last week as the guest of Miss Buxton.

A REPORT OF THE WORK OF THE VISITING NURSE

We judge that all of the people are interested in the work of the visiting nurse and would like to know something of the work that she has done since September 15. During this time Mrs. Young has made 167 nursing visits and 34 instructive visits. She has visited the schools at Oakland, Mollohon, Newberry mill, Johnstone academy and Silverstreet, and has given as many as 73 office dressings to the children. Mrs. Young will be glad to visit any schools in the county wherever she is wanted, and her transportation is provided.

Since this work began Mrs. Young has had 15 patients under her care, 11 of these being typhoid patients. In addition to this, the nurse has given a number of instructive talks. Any one knowing of cases where the nurse's services are needed will please report them to Mrs. Lucy B. Young, phone 188.
